

WESTFIELD

Winning robots

WESTFIELD SCHOOLS

Westfield High School students Thomas Purcell and Charles Cary engineered an underwater robot that took second place in a Stevens Institute of Technology workshop this summer. Teachers at the school will introduce robotics as a joint venture between the school's Advanced Placement physics and computer science departments, participated in an engineering education and research two-week program this summer at Stevens Institute of Technology called the "Build It" project.

